SYNOPSIS PILOT:

The world as we knew it no longer exists.

Seven years ago, an alien race came to earth destroying everything. Humans didn't have time to react, it was all so sudden, devastating. These monsters let everyone know we are not alone; we are not safe.

Roby, a 12-year-old boy, all alone in this world. One of the eaters took his mother and sister on day one, another took his father last winter, they were trying to find his sister; people say that the eaters keep the youngest to harvest later. It is Roby's mission now to find the only family he has left.

Most of Roby's life has been in this hell, he doesn't know anything else. He keeps some memories from the past: some birthday parties, his loving mother, his not-so-loving workaholic father and, something else... a robot friend. Every time these memories try to overcome him, he reminds himself: it's gone, we are alone.

One day, Roby bumps into an eater. He is in the middle of something that used to be a city. Roby hides in a destroyed Robosen factory. There he finds a K1, the newest version of the one he had as a child. The eater irrupts in the factory, Roby hides behind the robot. As the eater comes closer Roby gets scared for his life, what will happen to his little sister if he's gone? Help. K1 gets activated by Roby's voice. The Robosen distracts the monster for Roby to escape, but Roby comes back and pushes a big machine that smashes the eater saving K1. K1 takes the boy and flies outside the crashing down fabric.

K1 reveals to Roby that there are other Robosens out there, he can feel them. Roby had lost hope a long time ago, when the monsters killed his mother and took his sister, but now, for the first time he has regained, he has a friend. It's no longer about just finding his sister; it's about saving the world.
